CONNECTIONS

A Nationally
 Recognized
 Program

In 1996, the Connections Program held its first class at Oregon State Correctional Institution.

Since then, professionals in mental health, corrections, and MR/DD have refined components for seamless integration at any location where special needs education is required.

Participants gain awareness of real-world issues, and learn about personal choices that may lead to involvement with the criminal justice system.

Educational Materials

Bold, entertaining, and at times humorous, the curriculum materials utilize a variety of presentation formats. Proprietary comic-style illustrations and easy-to-understand language convey important concepts on many topics.

The Connections Program achieves higher cognitive assimilation than conventional approaches.

"This program is great! I learned a lot about my criminal thinking and how to get along better with people."

-Eddie, a program graduate

"Incredible. This product manages to impart surprisingly sophisticated cognitive concepts in an unusual format that is often fun for clients."

-Patricia Parezo, MA, LPC

"This program has a direct impact on the operation of our institution. Without (it) inmates who have special needs would not be provided the skills they need to become a productive part of the institutional population."

-Mitch Morrow, Deputy Director, Oregon Department of Corrections

Training & Staff Development

Trained instructors integrate comic-style workbooks, interactive sessions, videos, and individual assignments to engage learners. Staff training is available as an additional cost from purchase of the curriculum. Please inquire.

"I learned to identify my thinking errors, communicate better, and use my new skills to make better choices."

- Jenny A Program graduate

"The Connections curriculum is very thorough, and presented in a format geared toward individuals with cognitive disabilities or mental health issues. Our facility focuses on the court room competency section and this program is proving effective for individuals who have comprehensive challenges. We are seeing good results preparing people for competency hearings and understanding the criminal justice system."

- Robert Barton, Vocational Education Director, Sierra Vista Rehabilitation Center, California
